President's Message

Hello amazing PSC members:

I cannot believe we are heading into February already. The New Year has taken off with a bang. We had an awesome time at our game night in January. We played Pictionary and Crud. The food was great as always and the conversation was definitely interesting. We now have our annual community service event coming up in February: BUNCO FOR THE CURE! This is a wonderful way to give back to the Colorado Springs Community. All proceeds go to the local Susan G. Komen foundation. We'll have door prizes, and silent auctions. There will also be yummy finger food and lots of fun playing Bunco and winning prizes. Let's make this a record year and beat not only last year's donation but let's break the record for the most attendance. This event is open to the public so invite guests to come along. We are always looking for donations for this event so contact Farrah Champion if you have something you'd like to donate for Bunco prizes, door prizes or silent auction items. This is guaranteed to be an AWESOME EVENT!

It is also time to start thinking about the 2012-2013 Board year and start nominating new board members. We have elections for the Executive Board each fiscal year. The following are elected positions: President, 1st and 2nd Vice Presidents, Recording and Corresponding Secretaries, and General and Welfare Treasurers. If you have an interest in serving on the elected board or any of the other chairs please let Stephanie Zimmerman know.

Speaking of the board, we are still in need of a 2nd Vice President for the rest of this year. This is a rewarding position because the 2nd Vice oversees the welfare side of the board. We are also in need of a Welfare Treasurer. Our Welfare treasurer is in charge of all of the monies we give away on the base community and off base community and, most excitedly our Scholarships. Contact Stephanie Zimmerman, our Parliamentarian, if you are interested or if you have any questions.

We are also still in need of a number of sub-club chairs. We have a lot of interest in the different sub clubs but we do not have someone to set up times or meetings etc. Please contact me if you are interested in getting started a sub club you signed up for but doesn't have a chair. My email is: fishermd1@gmail.com.

Thank you all for your hard work and support of our Peterson Spouses Club.

Hugs,

Toni

The Money Spouse

I Love You, but not Enough to Take Care of You

February is the month of roses, chocolates, and your estate plan. Do you think that only wealthy people need an estate plan as part of their financial plan? Think again. Do you have kids? Do you own anything? If you answered yes to either of these questions you want to continue reading. I will address the "Top Five Myths" that I have heard in my office many times over the years and hopefully inspire you to take action to care for those you love the most. As always, if you have questions I am a phone call or an email away.

Myth 1: I have a will and powers of attorney from Base Legal. I am all set. Base Legal is a great resource and one of the many free services of which to take advantage. If you are single or married without children, this may be all you need. If you have any children, rental property, or own homes in other states and only have a Simple Will from Base Legal you might be in for a surprise. Most people draft "I Love You" wills that go like this: If my spouse is alive, everything to him or her, if not then everything to my kids split evenly." Easy enough, but if you and your spouse predecease your minor children, here is how things will likely play out with a Simple Will.

The Simple Will Estate Plan

1. You and your spouse die and you have children under the age of 18. All your assets that do not have a beneficiary named or are "owned joint and survivor" will go to the court. This is called probate.
2. A judge reviews your will in a public hearing and all your assets and debt are calculated to value your estate.
3. Now comes the interesting part. The judge doesn't give $400,000 of life insurance proceeds and a house to an 8 year old. Your Simple Will allows you to name a guardian to take care of your children and a custodian to manage your assets for the benefit of your children. These two roles can be filled by the same person but that is not required. The judge will decide if the person you named as guardian and custodian are still the best suited options for your children. If you didn't name anyone, the judge will appoint those roles.
4. All your assets will go into a Uniform Transfer to Minors Act (UTMA) account for your child's benefit and the court-appointed custodian manages these for your child's benefit. All your non-probate assets, anything with a named beneficiary or "owned joint and survivor" will go to the people you named as beneficiaries. If it is your children named as beneficiaries then those monies will also go into the UTMA.
5. Here is the surprise! When your children turn 21 the UTMA account is turned over to the kid(s) and they get all their assets outright. Regardless of whether your child just dropped out of college, is addicted to drugs and alcohol, or is in the midst of a lawsuit, they get their share of the money. Even with a great kid, whose goal is it that their kids get few thousand let alone a few hundred thousand dollars at age 21?

The not ideal situation of your children inheriting all of your hard earned assets at age 21 can be avoided by drafting a testamentary trust for your kids within your Will or Revocable Living Trust. Testamentary means that the trust doesn't come into play until you die. A revocable trust is in existence during your life and continues after your death. This does not mean that your kids can say that they have trust funds.☹ Base legal documents will follow the UTMA provisions (all assets outright at age 21). If you request more than that they will advise you to obtain outside legal counsel.

According to local Colorado Springs Estate Planning and Probate Attorney Amanda Vinton, "Wills with testamentary trusts should cost you a few hundred dollars. A Revocable Living Trust with testamentary trusts will probably cost a few thousand dollars, depending on how complicated you make it. While it can seem expensive up front, administering your estate may be last memory your children will have of you. It will also most likely be the last memory that you have of your parents. It is invaluable to have these conversations and get a plan in place which you understand, are comfortable with, and achieves your goals."

Put it on the "to do" list for 2012 to sit down with an attorney and draft the appropriate estate planning documents for your family. You can structure your plan in a way that is best for your family's unique situation. Remember, it is not, "I love you, but only enough to do things that are free for you."

The Money Spouse

Myth 2: I don't have to go through my investments and insurance policies if I have a will. Whomever I named in my will takes precedence over anything that I wrote down on all those other forms. This is one of the most common errors in estate planning. When someone dies, all the assets are put into a big basket. If an asset has a designated beneficiary, it is pulled out of that basket and given to those beneficiaries. It is only after all those beneficiary monies are removed, that the probate assets pass via the will. Any Retirement Account (TSP, 401k, Roth IRA, IRA), Life Insurance Policy (SGLI or personally owned) or accounts held as "joint tenants with rights of survivorship" or as Transfer on Death with named beneficiaries will take precedence over anything in a will.

Are you or your spouse divorced? Did you get married late in life? Many spouses get the worst surprise of their life every year that they are now a widow and $400,000 SGLI goes to a deceased spouses' ex-wife or parents. It is best to do a beneficiary audit every few years and make sure that your will is coordinated with all these beneficiary designations. Your financial planner or estate attorney can help you to understand and coordinate your beneficiaries with your will.

Myth 3: I don't need to tell anyone that I have a will. There is some kind of national database for all that that attorneys take care of. There is no database and it is 100% your responsibility to keep track of your will and let someone know where it is at. Also, the worst place that you can put your will is a safety deposit box. If you and your husband die, your nominated Personal Representative needs to get a court order to open your safety deposit box which can take a few weeks and is very costly. Did you get buried and it says in your will that you wanted to be cremated? Oops.

Myth 4: I don't have a will. No worries, the State of Colorado has written one for you. This is called passing intestate and Colorado, or your state of residency, decides who gets your stuff. In Colorado, your spouses' and your assets are separate. The division of your assets is very complicated and depends on whether you have children, whether they are minors, whether you have a blended family, and many other factors. For anyone who does not have the "traditional" family with 2.5 children who are the biological children of both parents, Colorado law probably does not result in the outcome you wanted.

Myth 5: We move all the time. Does it matter that I have a Virginia will? Where will I be considered a resident of when I die? I am kind of like a gypsy. All states have reciprocity and wills' validity crosses state lines. If you plan on being somewhere indefinitely you should strongly consider getting your wills re-drafted to make sure you are aware of any state specific clauses. This can also save money as out of state wills have to be validated by the court.

So, where do you live? When someone dies their residency is determined by several factors. Just because you did your will in VA does not mean that you are a VA resident. The courts will look at where you vote, where you own property, where you have your driver's license, where you have your vehicles registered, where you pay state taxes, etc., to determine where you live and where your assets will be probated.

Most families don't think about this topic because it is not fun and it costs money. Please don't wait until your spouse is about to deploy to figure this out. Working with a professional can provide clarity to a complicated topic and provide a priceless peace of mind to you and your spouse.

Chocolate Cherry Love Bites

Yields 15 skewers

Ingredients:

4 oz fine bittersweet chocolate, chopped

1/2 c slivered almonds

1/4 t pure almond extract (optional)

1/2 c maraschino cherries, drained

skewers to stack cherries

Directions:

Preheat oven to 400 degrees and set water onto heat for a double boiler. Arrange almonds in a single layer on a sheet pan.

Toast approximately 4-5 minutes until golden brown and fragrant. Let cool then chop finely. Over the simmering double boiler, heat chocolate in a bowl until melted evenly and glossy. Remove from heat and stir in almond extract. Arrange two cherries to the end of each skewer. Dip the top half of first cherry in melted chocolate then dip in chopped almonds. Set on wax or parchment paper and chill to harden. You may also use fresh cherries- just omit skewers and dip individually.

CONSIGNMENTS
Tues.- Fri. 9:30 AM - 12 noon

1. The Peterson Thrift Shop is located in Building 876 off Otis Street at Wurtsmith Street. It is open the above hours (weather permitting) and closed all holidays. It is closed the entire month of July. It is staffed by volunteers.
2. The Thrift Shop is a consignment shop where members of the Dept. of Defense family (with valid ID) may buy or sell used personal property. Up to 12 items (10 of which may be clothing items) may be consigned each day. No more than 4 "like" items per day. A blackboard inside the shop lists items that may be restricted or limited that day.
3. The prices on merchandise sold in the Thrift Shop are set by the consignee. Bartering is not permitted. Selling of items is not permitted in the Thrift Shop parking lot.
4. All items sold in the Thrift Shop are used. They are sold "as is". Whenever possible, test items before buying. There are NO REFUNDS, NO EXCHANGES, and NO GUARANTEES.
5. Clothing consignments must be appropriate to the season. All items, including clothing, must be clean and in good repair. Clothing must not be wrinkled, torn, stained, pilled, musty, or smell of smoke. Children's clothing must be cotton - no zippers or straps.
6. Items under $10 and all clothing (regardless of price) expire in 30 calendar days. Non-clothing items consigned for $10 or more expire in 60 calendar days, but are marked down 25% after 30 days.
7. The Thrift Shop has the right to refuse any article for sale that is unreasonably priced, dirty, or is not in good working order or condition. The Thrift Shop's decision on acceptance is final. Items found unacceptable after consignment will not be placed on display.
8. Checks are mailed by the 10th of each month for items sold the previous month. Consignees receive 75% for each item sold (minus a monthly postage & handling fee). Checks are written by computer and cannot be written or given out early.
9. The Thrift Shop retains 25% of the selling price of each item sold. All profits are distributed by the Peterson Spouses Club welfare committee to both the Air Force and civilian communities for charitable uses and scholarships.
10. A $.15 or 5% (whichever is greater) take-out fee is imposed to reclaim an unsold item anytime before it expires. Items not reclaimed before the contract expires become Thrift Shop property. The Thrift Shop is not responsible for reminding you of your contract expiration date.
11. The Thrift Shop is an excellent place to shop for bargains. Clothing, kitchen items, furniture, linens, etc. can be found at reasonable prices. A 30 day layaway program is available for more costly items, requiring a 30% non-refundable deposit. Inquire at the office.
12. The Thrift Shop accepts and appreciates any clean, usable donations. Items may be dropped off during operating hours, or after hours in the donation box in the back parking lot. Tax receipts are available in the office.
